Qualification in Auditors Report

The company has made an investment of Rs.37,55,79,087/- in its wholly owned unlisted subsidiary company MosChip Semiconductor Technology, USA (Formerly NetMos Technology Inc. USA). The investment is being carried at cost. The difference between the investment amount of Rs.37,55,79,087/- and the net worth amount of Rs.113,928,333/- of MosChip Semiconductor Technology,

USA, at book value, as on 31st March 2008 has not been charged to the Profit and Loss account.

Board's clarification

The Board is of the opinion that the difference between the investment amount and the net worth amount of MosChip Semiconductor Technology, USA, at book value, as on 31st March 2008 is not a reflection in the diminution of the value of the investment. The fair market value of MosChip USA, which is based on expected future cash flows over several years and other intangible assets (intellectual property developed and owned by it, the international distribution network, customer base, foundry relationships, etc.), is much higher than its net worth at book value. The book value does not capture the real intrinsic worth of an investment. The decline in fair market value of investment in MosChip USA, if any, is temporary in nature and hence no provision has been made in the books of accounts.

ANNEXURE 'C'MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

MosChip Semiconductor Technology Limited (MosChip India) is a fabless semiconductor company with its headquarters in Hyderabad, India. The Company specializes in development, marketing & sale of Application Specific Integrated Circuits (ASIC's) & SOC (System On a Chip) for PC Peripheral, Data Communication & Consumer Electronic segments. In this report, "MosChip Group", "Group", "we", "us" and "our" each refers to MosChip India and also its wholly owned subsidiary MosChip Semiconductor Technology, USA (MosChip USA), which was formerly known as NetMos Technology Incorporated, USA.

The financial statements have been prepared in compliance with the requirements of the Companies Act 1956 and the Generally Accepted Accounting Principles in India. The management of MosChip accepts responsibility for the integrity and objectivity of these financial statements, as well as, for various estimates and judgments used therein.

In addition to the historical information, this report contains certain forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties. Our actual results could differ materially from the results anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of certain factors including those set forth under the sub-heading "Risks and Concerns." Forward looking statements can be identified by the use of forward-looking words, such as "may," "could," "expect," "believe," "plan," "anticipate," "continue," "likely," or other similar words.

Overview

MosChip is the first publicly traded fabless semiconductor Company from India with specific focus on cutting edge products. MosChip leverages its engineering skills to develop custom products and IP development.

As a fabless semiconductor Company, MosChip is focused on product design while manufacturing of products is outsourced. The product design and ASIC software development is generally done by MosChip, but is also jointly developed with MosChip USA at certain times. The software is licensed to/used by MosChip USA, which subcontracts the manufacturing to ASIC Service Providers and sells the chip through its distribution networks worldwide.

The entire revenue from sale of products is thus in MosChip USA. MosChip USA pays a license fee to MosChip, which fee is linked to the gross margin on the products designed and developed by MosChip.

MosChip Group's product focus has been on data connectivity between computers and peripherals & other consumer electronic devices. New product launches have been focused on the opportunity thrown up by the convergence of PC and consumer electronic devices and the growing need for Internet Security and networking. Apart from developing its own products, MosChip also develops custom products and IP for its customers and has plans to tap opportunities in offshore software services for semiconductor companies.

Industry

According to the Semiconductor Industry Association (SIA), worldwide sales of semiconductors stood at $256 billion in 2007, an increase of 3 percent from the $248 billion reported in 2006.

The major drivers for semiconductor technology continue to be consumer electronics, such as cell phones, personal computers and HDTV sets. According to JP Morgan, personal computers still account for approximately 40% of all semiconductor consumption – shipments of such computers grew by approximately 14% and are expected to grow by another 13% in 2008. In addition, shipments of mobile handsets grew to 1.2 billion units in 2007 with an expected increase of 10% - 15% in 2008. The SIA also added that MP3/PMP player unit sales continue to grow at nearly 20 percent a year. LCD TV units grew by more than 50 percent, and digital camera units grew by 20 percent.

Average selling prices (ASPs) for all products have continued their downward trends. Lesser revenue growth among semiconductor manufacturers is aptly demonstrated by the pricing pressures faced due to the arrivals of faster, smaller and cheaper semiconductors every year. The speed of an average desktop has improved dramatically while the costs of the desktop have continued to dip. According to the SIA, rapidly declining prices coupled with increases in performance and functionality provides consumers with additional computing power at lower prices resulting in higher productivity.

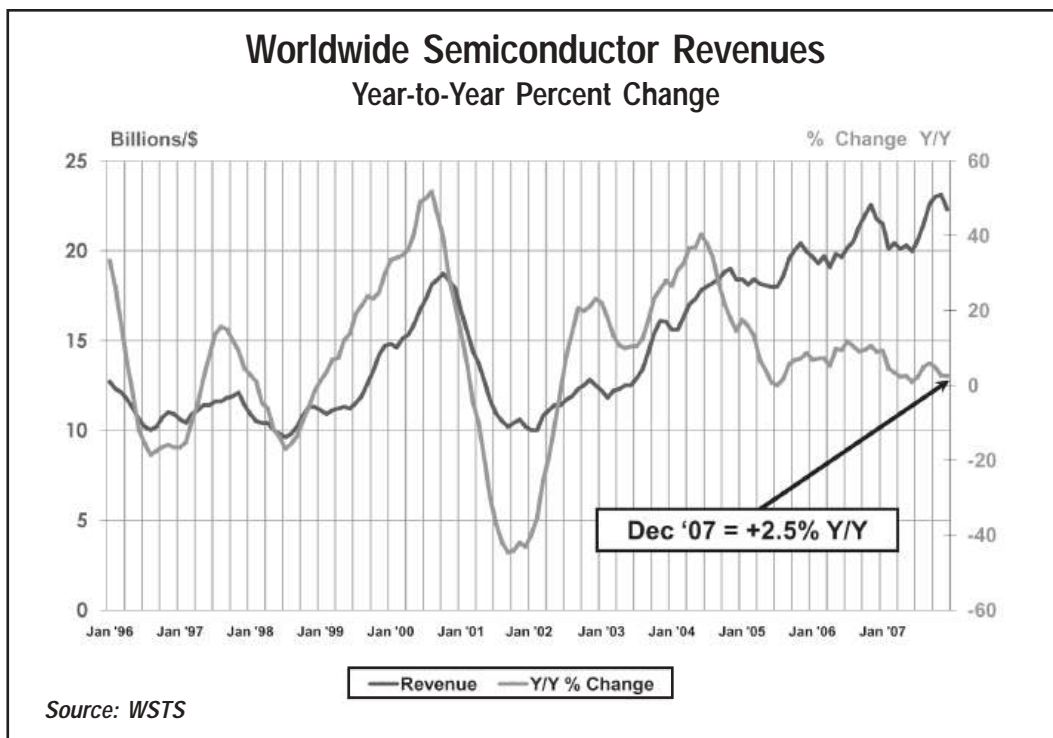

Growth

World Semiconductor Trade Statistics (WSTS) projects that in the long run the Asia Pacific region continues to be the fastest growing geographical area, due to the dynamics of both strongly rising domestic demand and the continuing manufacturing shift to this region. Year on year growth of semiconductor revenues continue to maintain the trends of the recent past as highlighted in the charts below.

PCI

Compared to the progress made every year in other areas of computer technology such as processors and video cards, computer Input/Output (I/O) system technology has not changed much. Since the introduction of the PCI bus in the early 90's, very little has changed the way data is handled inside the computer.

Hard drives, peripherals, LAN cards, sound cards, USB and firewall all pass data through the same I/O system as the first 486 PC; the PCI bus running at 33 Megahertz and shifting 133 Mega Bytes per second of data. With the ever growing need for higher bandwidth, Intel, in partnership with several other companies, which include the likes of IBM, Dell, Compaq, HP and Microsoft have recently introduced the PCI-Express standard for PC I/O. PCI-Express was approved in July 2002 and was released on motherboard products in 2004.

PCI Express appears to be well on its way to becoming the new back plane standard in personal computers. Almost all of the high-end graphics cards being released from ATI and NVIDIA use PCI Express. Most new gigabit Ethernet chips and some 802.11 wireless chips also use PCI Express. Other hardware such as RAID controllers and network cards are also starting to make the switch.

As compared to PCI, the bandwidth of a PCI Express link can be scaled by adding signal pairs to form multiple lanes between the two devices. The specification supports x1, x4, x8, and x16 lane widths and stripes the byte data across the links accordingly. Once the two agents at each end of the PCI Express link negotiate lane widths and frequency of operation, the striped data bytes are transmitted with 8b/10b encoding.

Future implementations of PCI Express will raise the channel communication frequency to even higher levels. For example, a second generation of PCI Express could increase the communication frequency by a factor of 2 or more.

Because it is a point-to-point architecture, the entire bandwidth of each PCI Express bus is dedicated to the device at the end of the link. Multiple PCI Express devices can be active without interfering with each other.

In contrast to PCI, PCI Express has minimal sideband signals and the clocks and addressing information are embedded in the data. Because PCI Express is a serial technology with few sideband signals, it provides a very high bandwidth per I/O connector pin compared to PCI. This is designed to result in more efficient, smaller, and cheaper connectors.

Universal Serial Bus (USB)

USB is the most popular external bus standard in the history of PCs. Today, USB connections can be found in a range of devices, from PCs, MP3 players, cameras to scanners, printers, digital camcorders and digital modems.

USB 1.1 standard, which supports data transfer rates up to 12 Megabits per second, has difficulty in handling high-speed peripherals such as external high capacity storage or highend PC cameras, which have capability to move large chunks of data at high speed. The second difficulty that USB 1.1 enabled PC might encounter is in handling multiple USB peripherals.

USB 2.0 standard, which supports 480 Megabits per second, is an improvement over USB 1.1 in terms of data transfer rate. The USB 2.0 was introduced in May 2002, when Intel launched three USB 2.0 enabled core logic chipsets. The USB 2.0 market has increased at a good pace, as most PC and peripheral vendors now demand PCs installed with USB 2.0.

USB can connect peripherals such as mouse, keyboards, game pads and joysticks, scanners, digital cameras, printers, external storage, networking components, etc.

USB OTG (On-The-Go) has also emerged to meet the challenge for connecting devices together without the PC. USB OTG will enable consumers to print photos directly from a camera, directly email pictures from a still camera using a mobile phone, print directly from a PDA, etc. Wireless USB is the next emerging standard in the USB world. Wireless USB will allow the USB standard to operate wirelessly. It promises to have an effect particularly on those portable USB-enabled devices that make frequent ad-hoc connections such as portable digital audio players, digital still cameras and digital camcorders. However, the increasing bandwidth needs of the growing mass of USB devices and an inadequate volume of wireless USB is posing a challenge to the development and adoption of the wireless USB.

USB saw continued worldwide success in 2007, with more than 2.6 billion devices shipping in the PC, PC peripheral, consumer electronics (CE), communications, and automotive segments. USB's star is expected to maintain its rise, with close to 4 billion devices expected to ship in 2012. 2008 is expected to be a pivotal marker of USB's achievements as well, as the number of high-speed USB-enabled device shipments will surpass those of low- and full-speed devices. The CE segment has been a strong driver of this success, with continued adoption of USB in digital cameras, portable digital media players, and digital televisions.

The major buzz in the USB ecosystem is the impending arrival of the SuperSpeed USB specification. The USB 3.0 version of the specification, when implemented, is anticipated to deliver actual speeds of approximately 3Gbps, a rate significantly higher than that of high-speed USB. This speed is expected to be harnessed primarily by data- and media-intensive peripherals and consumer electronics, such as external hard-disk drives, portable digital media players, and digital cameras, as well as the PCs that these devices connect to. Products incorporating SuperSpeed USB are expected to arrive on the market in late 2009, and shipments of SuperSpeed USB-enabled products are expected to multiply twenty-fold by 2012.

Opportunities

PCI Express

The emergence of the PCI Express is throwing up new market opportunities as the market migrates to the new standard. Moschip released a industry first PCI Express part in Jan 2008 which was well received with design wins, Going forward MosChip is working on a couple of PCI Express products that is expected to be released late 2008.

USB

This is a fast growing market with tremendous opportunity as every PC that was shipped in 2006 had USB connectivity. The Consumer Electronics market has also adopted USB as a key connectivity option, this presents additional opportunities with USB bridging solutions. USB On-the-go is also emerging to meet the challenge for connecting devices together without the PC.

Network Processors

Moschip Network Appliance Processors are targeted at the Consumer NAS, Small Office Home Office (SOHO), Point of Sales (POS), Digital Signage and Docking station markets. These high end, integrated ASICs can be designed as Host Processors as well as Co-processors depending on the application. These powerful ASICs showcase Gigabit Ethernet, PCI express, USB and display processing support.

AV processors

Audio Video processors, a new product line aimed the high end consumer electronics market. The targeted applications are Digital Camcorders, Digital Video Recorders with HDD, Digital TVs with built in recorders and Video Surveillance equipment. These high end ASICs can be used a Host Processors or co-processors to enable secure Audio/Video content management and storage. Key features supported enable high definition video stream management, content protection and digital rights management.

Outsourcing

American and European companies, in a bid to cut costs have been looking to outsource design, verification and software aspects of the chip design process. A large pool of well-trained, low-cost engineering talent has been driving this trend, which is expected to gain momentum in the semiconductor industry in particular.

Outlook

The paragraphs below summarize the management views on the outlook for the current financial year -

Strong customer demand for products and emergence of new technology

We expect sales from PCI products to remain stable as the need for UARTs is stable and many motherboards have dropped the UART and Printer Port support. PCI products have also been designed in by OEMs into new applications such as point-of-sale machines, game consoles and HDTV tuner modules. The launch of PCI Express products later this year will help us to retain our market position in this segment.

Healthy organic growth potential

The USB products have also won OEM designs into various applications such as laptop and industrial docking stations. The new products MCS 7840 and MCS 7820, which were launched in November 2006, are expected to gain momentum. We are also witnessing strong demand for MCS 7830, which provides USB to Ethernet connectivity. MCS 8140, a highly integrated general purpose network processor that can be used in a variety of applications requiring network connectivity, was launched recently has been well received by our customers.

MosChip expects to achieve at least 30% growth in the consolidated revenues during the current year. In an effort to achieve profitability by the end of the 2008-09 financial year, we have invested in senior engineering and sales personnel to design and market the latest in a series of cutting edge products. The engineering capability of MosChip is extremely mature and repeatedly proven by delivering many products into production without any rework. The team has also handled projects that have more than 6 million transistors in a single chip & delivered along with it software that is several millions of bytes.

Identification of new opportunities for inorganic growth

MosChip is also looking to grow inorganically by identifying acquisition opportunities and tie ups for licensing arrangements that can complement the product and technology mix that MosChip offers, specifically in areas of ASIC design, software drivers and custom application development.

MosChip has been approached by multiple companies seeking the participation in growth of a leader in the fabless semiconductor space. MosChip's core engineering capabilities, combined with the existing customer bases of these organizations will open a plethora of opportunities to market MosChip products to a larger customer group. In addition, the complementary engineering and marketing efforts will lead to greater penetration into newer markets.

MosChip is evaluating opportunities for the right fit in the engineering, product, and licensing and services areas. We expect to close at least 2-3 arrangements in the current financial year resulting in a positive impact on the bottom line by the end of the year. In addition, the revenue streams of the acquired/licensed products will be fully integrated into the financials for the following years, thereby offering additional opportunities for inorganic growth and capital investment in emerging semiconductor technologies.

Outsourcing opportunities in the engineering design area may offer key revenue potential.

The market for outsourcing of design and engineering services to other providers is in the nascent space. MosChip believes that this offers the opportunity to enter into key arrangements with large organizations to design and develop products and software for semiconductor and related products. MosChip's excellence and leadership in the engineering services area offers a key competitive advantage in addition to lower cost structures as compared to larger organizations.

Risks and concerns

The following important factors could affect our future results of operations.

Semiconductor products are difficult to manufacture without defects.

The manufacture of semiconductors is a complex process and it is often difficult for semiconductor foundries to produce semiconductors free of defects. The ability to manufacture products of acceptable quality depends both on product design and manufacturing process technology. Since defective products can be caused by design or manufacturing difficulties, identifying quality problems can occur only by analyzing and testing semiconductors in a system after they have been manufactured. Failure to achieve defect-free products due to their complexity may result in an increase in the costs and delay in the availability of MosChip Group's products.

Future success depends upon the continued services of key personnel, many of whom would be difficult to replace.

The Company's future success depends upon the continued services of its executive officers, key hardware and software engineers, and sales, marketing and support personnel, many of whom would be difficult to replace. The loss of one or more of these employees could seriously harm the Company's business. In addition, because of the highly technical nature of its business, the loss of key engineering personnel could delay product introductions and significantly impair the Company's ability to successfully create future products.

Long product development process and sales cycle result in incurrence of expenses up front before revenues from the investment are realized.

MosChip Group develops products based on anticipated market and customer requirements and incurs substantial product development expenditures prior to generating associated revenues. The customers typically perform numerous tests and extensively evaluate MosChip Group's products before incorporating them into their systems. The time required for testing, evaluation and design of MosChip Group's products, into a customer's equipment can take up to six months or more.

Others may bring infringement actions against MosChip Group that could be time-consuming and expensive to defend.

The Group may become subject to claims involving patents and other property rights. Intellectual property claims would subject the Group to significant liability claims for damages and invalidate its proprietary rights. In addition, intellectual property claims may be brought against customers that incorporate its products in the design of their own products. These claims, regardless of their success or merit and regardless of whether the Group is named as a defendant in a lawsuit, would likely be time consuming and expensive to resolve and would divert the time and attention of the Management and technical personnel.

The cyclical nature of the semiconductor industry may lead to significant variances in the demand for MosChip Group's products and could harm its operations.

In the past, the semiconductor industry has been characterized by significant downturns and wide fluctuations in supply and demand. Also, during this time, the industry has experienced significant fluctuations in anticipation of changes in general economic conditions, including economic conditions in Asia, Europe and North America. The cyclical nature of the semiconductor industry has led to significant variances in product demand and production capacity. It has also accelerated the reduction of average selling prices per unit. The Group may experience periodic fluctuations in its future financial results because of changes in industry-wide conditions.

The Company's operating and consolidated results may be adversely affected by variations of the Indian rupee against foreign currencies and the US dollar.

The Company generates its revenues from international operations. The Company also consolidates its results with a wholly owned subsidiary in USA. Any adverse fluctuations in the currencies in which the Company's exports are invoiced or any adverse fluctuation against the US dollar would affect the Company's results of operations and the consolidated financial position.

Internal control systems

The Company has formulated effective internal control systems and implemented the same strictly to ensure that the assets and interests of the Company are safeguarded and to determine the accuracy and reliability of accounting data.

The Company has an internal audit system and its functions are to ensure that systems are designed and implemented with adequate internal controls. The Company's control methodology is commensurate with the size of operations, the transactions that are executed, and the assets that must be safeguarded and deployed in accordance with the Company's policies.

An Audit Committee, headed by a non-executive independent Director, periodically reviews the audit information/observation and all significant issues are brought to the attention of the committee.

Human Resources

The Company currently employs a total of 130 employees. All the employees are located at Hyderabad, India. Of these 110 are technical employees and the rest are marketing and support staff.

MosChip firmly believes that the key to its success is in its ability to hire and retain employees with appropriate qualifications and competencies. The Company's human resource management works towards this goal and strives to provide the right work atmosphere, opportunities for learning and personal development to all employees, and appraisal and reward mechanisms to encourage excellence in performance.

The Company regularly ensures that the compensation packages are in line with industry levels and grants stock options to retain talent.

Your Company achieved total revenues of USD 5.95 million for the financial year ended 31 March 2008, an increase of 3.3% over the year ended 31 March 2007.

The gross profit for the financial year ended 31 March 2008 was USD 3.130 million.

Outlook

The USB products have won OEM designs into various applications such as laptop and industrial docking stations. The new products MCS 7840 and MCS 7820, which were launched in November 2006, are expected to gain momentum. We are also witnessing strong demand for MCS 7830, which provides USB to Ethernet connectivity. MCS 8140, a highly integrated general purpose network processor that can be used in a variety of applications requiring network connectivity, was launched recently has been well received by our customers.

We expect sales from PCI products to remain stable as the need for UARTs is stable and many motherboards have dropped the UART and Printer Port support. PCI products have also been designed in by OEMs into new applications such as point-of-sale machines, game consoles and HDTV tuner modules. The launch of PCI Express products later this year will help us to retain our market position in this segment.

Acknowledgements

Your Directors appreciate the support extended by the bankers, vendors, clients and employees.

- ◆ Use of estimates - The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Actual results could differ from those estimates.
- ◆ Concentrations of cash - The Corporation at times during operations has cash deposits in excess of $100,000. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) insures only the first $100,000 of funds at member banks.
- ◆ Accounts receivable - The Corporation considers accounts receivable to be fully collectible; accordingly, no allowance for doubtful accounts is required. If amounts become uncollectible, they will be charged to operations when that determination is made.

Depreciation is calculated using the straight-line method over estimated useful lives of two, three, five and seven years. When items of property or equipment are sold or retired, the related cost and accumulated depreciation is removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is included in the results of operations.
- ◆ Income taxes - Income taxes are provided for the tax effects of transactions reported in the financial statements and consist of current and deferred taxes. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are computed annually for differences between the financial statement and tax bases of assets and liabilities that will result in taxable or deductible amounts in the future, based on enacted tax laws and rates applicable to the periods in which the differences are expected to affect taxable income. Valuation allowances are established when necessary to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized. The provision for income taxes is the tax payable or refundable for the period plus or minus the change during the period in deferred tax assets and liabilities.
